

PREDICTING FUTURE BEHAVIOR OF AN INDIVIDUAL

Abstract

A method of predicting future behavior of an individual by analyzing the content of internet websites already visited by that individual. The method is useful in customer relationship management for predicting customers' future behavior including their commercial requirements relating to that behavior and then communicating appropriately with selected ones of those customers.